Taking a discerning look at the areas of greatest concern to many can act as a powerful guide to our higher selves and future opportunities we can take advantage of as well as help us to learn where any obstacles may be placed in our path so that we can gracefully overcome them.

In this specialized study we will look at the following key areas:

- Finances (Ascendant and 2nd House Ruler)
- Higher Education (Ascendant, 9th House, and Mercury)
- Marriage (Ascendant, 7th House, and Venus)
- Profession (Ascendant, Moon, and Saturn)
- Happiness (Ascendant, Jupiter, and Sun)

Finances - 8th House Pisces

The 8th House is a succedent house which basically means “following” or “subsequent to” the leading angular house. As a succedent this is a house that provides support. This house will point to your belongings, to what is yours, and to what is supportive of the preceding angular house before it. In this case the 8th House supports the angular 7th House.

The 8th House is ruled by Mars under a traditional rulership and Pluto under modern rulership. It is also governed by the element of water. This is the house of inheritances, sexuality, power, risk, losses, desires, temptations, and how we learn to deal with our shadow or darker side of our personality. This house at the hour of birth denotes potential phases of transformations, crisis, and areas of waste in our lives that we would do well to pay attention to and adequately prepare for.

The 8th House rules money accumulated through partnership or marriage and more generally other people’s money so think inheritances, debt, taxes, joint finances (spouse/partner), and loans.

One may worry about their joint finances and investing fearing the worst, but will need to trust their intuition which is very strong. This placement may indicate the need to set aside what one wants for the sake of others. Transforming one’s self may require some sacrifices and one may be inspired spiritually to change.

There’s a drive found here for bettering one’s self and perhaps tearing down one’s self or one’s life so they can start over again. This is the type of person who sees what they want and takes it. However, they need to learn to not hoard their resources so much and to share with others. Possessiveness won’t serve anyone well.

One may have issues with intimacy that leads to assorted problems. Ensure that you don’t become attracted to the wrong people. One with this position can have issues dealing with other people’s money, joint finances, or use it as a way of controlling others or letting themselves be controlled by others.

Higher Education - 12th House Cancer

This house is a cadent house or the last house in each quadrant of the natal chart. Planets in this house are often going to have less of an impact on your manifested life path. Yet these houses indicate areas of learning for us as they portend areas where we must transform ourselves, grow, improve, and further develop from weakness to strength. In other words, cadent houses show areas of nurture, whereas the other houses, the angular and succedent, can be thought of as more indicative of your nature or what you are born with.

The 12th House is ruled by Jupiter under a traditional rulership and Neptune under a modern rulership. It is also governed by the element of water. Here we find self-awareness and self-sacrifice. It can denote the nature of personal trials we suffer in our lives, the losses or obstacles we experience as we try to achieve our goals, and self-actualization. This house tells us of the hero's journey via what you must go through and endure to achieve success.

The house can also show what we perceive to be our limitations. Since we perceive these attributes to be our limitations, they potentially become a form of self-fulfilling prophecy. Being conscious of the influences in the 12th House can help us transform weaknesses into strengths.

This is the house of suffering through epiphanies and awakenings. It is the house of karmic difficulties, enemies, personal inner crises, and what pains us to bring us toward self-actualization. The 12th House tells the story of the demons we face to achieve transcendence.

One keeps their emotions to themselves not wanting anyone to see just how emotional they can be while also coming across as fun and free. When comfortable and not feeling threatened one can show how sensitive they are. Your individual goal is to work on being more sensitive to other people.

This placement gives one a sense of faith that doesn't waver and is instinctual. It is the hallmark of those who just know that things will work out okay and they usually do. There's always someone there to help when we need help the most. One likes doing things by themselves and reflecting upon their life which allows them to replenish themselves. Extremely compassionate and giving wanting to do as much as one can to help others, but not caring about getting rewards or credit for it. Just knowing they helped is enough.

The 12th House does like to hide the energies of the planets within it so one can hide their compassion and spiritual self while worrying about showing vulnerability. Until one develops a strong spiritual side they may be prone to running away from things in life. Knowing that they are a strong person who will make it through anything life throws at them is a huge confidence boost.

Marriage - 9th House Aries

This house is a cadent house as well. This is going to be an area of learning for us, and what goes on in this house will denote areas where we must transform ourselves, grow, improve, and further develop from weakness to strength. In other words, the cadent 9th House shows areas of higher learning, growth, and spiritual development that further enhance and support both the preceding angular 7th House of our unions and relationships and the following angular 10th House of our social status and career goals.

This house is ruled by Jupiter and the element fire. This house relates to how we view spirituality, religion, or mystical matters. It shows our relationship to Spirit, God, the Divine, or how well (or not well) connected we are to the collective unconscious. It is the house of divination, journeys, higher education, and self-actualization. This house will offer a sense of your life philosophies.

One enjoys going on adventures and may have no problems coming up with plans to do work that's new and interesting. Here one will have an optimistic attitude and feel that they can get anything done that they really want to.

Life is one giant learning experience. One could love school, get multiple degrees, or spend a large chunk of their life in school. Even if one hated school they still love to learn and experience can be a good teacher. This placement indicates one who may be a good teacher wanting to share everything they have learned. One could also be a writer or in publishing, being a natural storyteller, loving to travel to exotic places, and have an interest in cultures that are different from their own.

Profession - 5th House Sagittarius

This house is a succedent house. This house will be supportive of the preceding angular house before it. In this case the 5th House supports the angular 4th House.

This house is ruled by the Sun and the element fire. It is the house of creativity and fertility. It often shows our creations, our children or progeny, and our personal pursuits. The 5th House can reveal what our hobbies are or areas that are going to be of general interest to us. This house can also indicate our love affairs and secondary relationships.

This placement is about the love of fun and the need to have time in our life for hobbies and doing whatever one wants. This is someone that everyone wants to spend their free time with because it's going to be a great adventure. One may not take life too seriously and can be hard to pin down desiring freedom for a while.

Expressing one's self in some way is of the utmost importance with this placement. If one doesn't feel as though they can truly express themselves they instead feel stifled and unhappy. Desiring to be seen and heard, to get attention from others, and being drawn to the spotlight one can go into the arts especially theater, film, or sports. Pleasant to be around allows for one to always be surrounded by others. This is the placement of those who like being social, having many acquaintances they can spend time with, and who love going to parties, out to dinner, or shopping and having fun.

Happiness - 11th House Gemini

This house is a succedent house. This house will be supportive of the preceding angular house before it. In this case the 11th House supports the angular 10th House.

This house is ruled by Saturn under a traditional rulership and Uranus under a modern rulership. It is also governed by the element air. This is the house of community. This house denotes who our friends are, what our relationship to our community is, and how our external selves manifest in society. This is a social house focused on our group involvements, humanitarianism, and how we might contribute to our community. This is also the house that denotes our social or supportive network.

One may be mostly casual yet need the social interaction for mental stimulation. When it comes to their dreams one may have two specifically that they want or they can go from one dream to the next quickly and easily.

Here we find the loner archetype to a degree. Making friends is difficult for them, and they can feel uncomfortable in social situations. This is due to their inability to withstand superficial connections so any friendships that they may have are kept for life. These friendships need to be made with stable and reliable people. This placement is about finding one's individuality. They don't want to blend in and be like everyone else, but this too can cause them to reject everyone else. Insecurity is the root of the problem. The 11th House also rules dreams and Saturn here can delay receiving one's dreams until later in life or cause one to not commit to any dream. Release the fear that holds you back.

The people that will be admired are the ones who are innovative, original, and their own person. One may dazzle a crowd, but have issues actually connecting with people on an emotional level as well as look down on people who aren't as open to new ideas as they are. When around people who share similar beliefs and who want to work with you towards a shared common goal you can flourish so long as they don't stifle one too much.
